Mecca, the Holy City.

Mecca, sometimes called Om-el-Kora (the mother of towns), lies in a narrow sandy valley running north and south, among barren hills from 200 to 500 feet in height, about 46 miles from the Red sea port of Jeddah. In Burckhardt's time the town, including the suburbs, occupied the broader part of the valley, extended up the slopes, was not more than 3500 paces in length, and had an estimated stationary population of 33,000; the permanent residents are probably now about 45,000.

It is described by Burckhardt as a handsome town, the streets broader than usual in Oriental cities. The houses are built of gray stone, many of them three stories high, with windows opening on the street; many windows project from the wall, and have elaborately carved and gaudily painted framework. The houses are built, as usual in the East, about courts, with terraces protected by parapets, and most of them are constructed for the accommodation of lodgers, so that the pilgrims can have convenient access to their separate apartments. The town, in fact, is greatly modified to minister to the needs of the great influx of strangers in the annual Hajj.

Ordinary houses have apartments for them, the streets are broad to give room for the crowd of pilgrims, and the innovation of outer windows is to give the pilgrims a chance to see the procession. The city lies open on all sides; it has a few trees and no fine buildings, except the great mosque. It is not well supplied with water, and in the height of the pilgrimage this fluid becomes scarce and dear. The wells are brackish and there are few cisterns for collecting rain water. It is true that the flow of the holy well Zemzem in the mosque is copious enough to supply the town, but there is a prejudice against using the water for common purposes, and besides, it is heavy and bad for digestion.

The best water is brought in an aqueduct from the vicinity of Ararat, six or seven hours distant, but the conduit is in bad repair and uncleaned, and this supply often gets low. The streets are unpaved, and as the country is subject to heavy rains, alternating with scorching heat, they are always either excessively muddy or intolerably dusty. The fervent heat of the town is always contrasted with the coolness of the elevated city of Medina. Mohammed said that he who endured the cold of Medina and the heat of Mecca merited the reward of paradise.

Sudden and copious storms of rain frequently deluge Mecca; sometimes the whole town is submerged, houses are swept away and lives lost, and water has stood in the mosque enclosure as high as the black stone in Kaaba. Although Burckhardt says that he enjoyed his stay there, and was very comfortable (the Hajj that year was in November), his experience is not that of most pilgrims.

Tried to Cremate His Wife.—Stephen Andrew, of Yorktown, Pa., attempted to cremate his wife on Saturday by tying her to a bedpost and setting fire to a straw bedtick which he tied about her. After heating her on Friday until she became unconscious, he tied her to the bed with a straw tickabout her, then ignited it. Charles Turner happened to be passing and heard the noise made. Going in he found the woman enveloped in flames. He began fighting the fire with a bed quilt, while the husband attempted to do Mr. Turner bodily harm. The woman was rescued and taken to her home close by, where the brute again attempted to take her life with an axe. Jealousy prompted him to attempt the act. The affair created intense excitement and a posse is pursuing Andrew, who fled to the mountains.

PRICES A LITTLE LOWER THAN EVER.

Will be pleased to have all who are interested to give us a call.

J. R. CHAPMAN,

NO. 424 KING STREET.

Right at Your Doors.

DRY GOODS.

Ladies. Attention!

Here is a feast for you. We have been fortunate in securing from a New York Importer twenty (20) pieces of beautiful

French Dress Goods.

IN ALL THE NEWEST SHADINGS.

They are a strictly All-Wool fabric, forty inches wide and were made to retail at $1.25 per yard. We bought them at half their value and will offer the same as long as they last at 60 CENTS PER YARD.

Can match all shades in SILKS, VELVETS, or GIMPS for trimmings.

We would urge contemplating purchasers of Dresses to call early, as we will not be able to duplicate at this price when these are sold. Will open second invoice of this week. All new styles. Everyone different from last invoice.

LADIES' CLOAKS

Call and see them at

BENDHEIM'S

316 KING STREET.

We are selling Agents for the celebrated WHITE SEWING MACHINE.

AMOS B. SLAYMAKER,

FOR THE

FALL AND WINTER OF 1892.

Has opened a large stock of

LADIES', GENTS' AND CHILDREN'S UNDERWEAR, NOTIONS AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS.

At prices that will give satisfaction to all who will favor him with a call.
